BRITISH MUSEUM (NATURAL HISTORY).

PICTURE POST CARDS.

Originally introduced in consequence of the success which had attended the issue of similar cards at the Bloomsbury branch of the British Museum, and to meet a demand on the part of visitors to the Museum for pictorial mementos of their visits, the series of picture post cards issued by the Natural History Museum is gradually growing into an illustrated epitome of the Museum itself and is proving of great educational value. The cards are in use in educational institutions of all grades, from Universities to Elementary Schools, in the British Isles, in America and on the Continent; and, as the knowledge of their existence and usefulness spreads, a demand for them is growing up even in the more distant British Dominions and Foreign Countries.

Each set is accompanied by an explanatory leaflet, which, in addition to a general discussion of the subject illustrated by the set, points out the interesting features of each picture and, together with the cards, forms a useful basis for a nature lesson.

Both leaflets and cards are prepared by or under the direct supervision of specialists in the subjects dealt with; as much care is taken with the pictures, from the point of view of accuracy, as if they were destined to illustrate scientific monographs, while at the same time no effort is spared to render them as attractive as possible; and it is endeavoured in every way to ensure that the Natural History Museum picture post cards are worthy of the institution which issues them, and that they maintain its authority and reputation.

The cards now include representations in colour of all British Butterflies (Sets E 5, E 19–24, E 51, E 53 and E 55), and of the eggs of practically all British Birds (Sets C 7–10); and a new and attractive feature is the series on British Trees (Sets F 22–38 and F 44–F 46).

The prices of the sets have now been reduced; Set F 3 is now one shilling and sixpence, the sets at one shilling are now ninepence, and those at sixpence, except those representing British Trees, are now fourpence.

Details are given at the end of this pamphlet as to which cards are obtainable singly and at what price: also as to the allowance which should be made to cover the carriage of cards ordered by post.

The present issue of the list includes new sets dealing with the Life Histories of British Butterflies and Moths (Sets E 55 and E 56), Carnivora (Sets B 16–19), Primates (Sets B 20 to B 23) and Flowering Plants (Set F 47).
